

Alexandra Rosier

ALEXANDRA ROSIER

Alexandra grew up with strong personalities : her argentinian origins' father, great art lover and collector of silverwares and her mother, a woman of character, collector of Victorian jewels who opened her jewelry box to her.

After the Beaux Arts in Madrid and the BJOP in Paris, it will be at Cartier and Graff in high jewelery sector that Alexandra will continue her formation.

In 2015, she launched her eponymous brand, with two haute joaillerie capsule collections. Ten dreamlike little worlds nestled in glass' drops.

Inspired by her origins, her travels and all that the world has to offer, she changes her approach to offer as many people as possible collections marked with meaning and history.

A close-up photograph of several overlapping green leaves, showing detailed vein patterns. The leaves are a vibrant green color, with some darker green areas in the shadows and lighter green areas where the light hits. The veins are clearly visible, creating a complex, grid-like pattern across the surface of each leaf. The word "TRAVELS" is overlaid in the center of the image in a white, sans-serif font.

PRESS RELEASE

The origins of the pinky ring date can be traced back to 5,500 BC in Mesopotamia (now Iraq, Kuwait, Turkey and Syria), where literate businessmen wore a personalised seal around their necks to help them authorise and approve important documents. Eventually, the Ancient Egyptians adapted this signature system, improving on it by turning the pendants into rings for easy access. More practical than fashionable, these small 'signet rings' became integral parts of the day-to-day workings in society. Fast forward to the Middle Ages, with silversmithing and stone carving advancements, signet rings became a symbol of wealth among the more affluent members of society. They would have their rings set with precious gemstones to further demonstrate their wealth and social status.

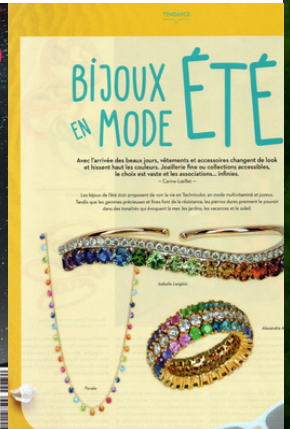

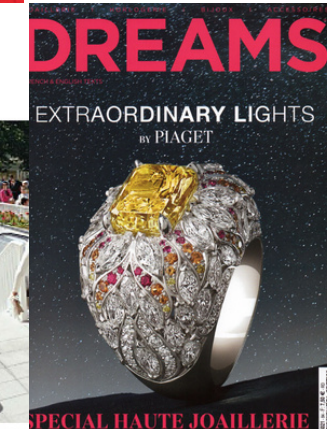

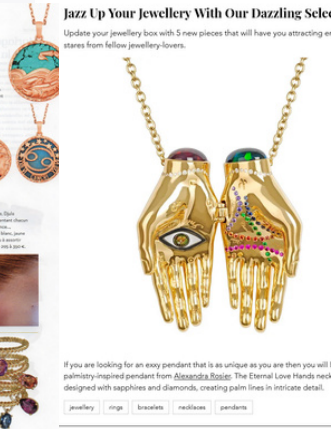

Alexandra Abramczyk gold, multi-coloured sapphires, topaz and tanzanite Range Soft Grand Middle ring

The Comfortable Jewel

Something precious and comfortable to wear is the ultimate travel companion. Now, I am not simply talking about physical comfort but also being confident that a jewel is secure. For example, I have a pair of drop earrings with diamonds and spinel in white gold by my designer friend Ichien that are my 'easy jewel' to wear on trips abroad because of their secure lock. I know they look lovely and aren't likely to get lost on my jewellery adventures!

My suggestions: Choose a jewel that can be your second skin with a color palette that goes with pretty much anything. Avoid thin chains or bracelet that can break or rings with gems that can be knocked on surfaces. Jewels with large gold surfaces is most suitable for daily wear because it is likely to scratch easily and appear like it needs to be polished. My go-to easy jewels are tennis bracelets, band rings and studs (or small drops).

Incisamente come sono le mani di Alexandra Abramczyk, Alexandra Rosier permette liberamente ai suoi clienti di scegliere il proprio design. L'occasione diventa il suo primo mezzo per dare un senso al volume del design. Un terreno di gioco in cui lui permette di "adattare" il suo stile di design qui a fare un pezzo, parte di un set o un pezzo di un set di gioielli. In fine di serie certe saioni, dei ispirazioni indiane e tribali, come a un abito, ma sempre un ritorno al bestiario del design con dei gioielli in oro e diamanti, saphirs multicolores, coraux, mais surtout parfaitement artistiques. Des pièces de haute volée.
